tors. Our intention is not to praise any particular make of incubators, but to tell our readers in a friendly way the kind we use and the care it receives, and the results we have obtained. Our attention was first directed to this subject by breeding pure Leghorn fowls, and as they would not set it was neces-sary to keep some other breed in order to raise the young. A year ago this spring we opened up correspondence with the leading poultry breeders in the United States and Canada, with a view to gleaning information upon the practicability of artificial incubation in general, and, if possible, to get from them such advice as would enable us to select the very best make of incubators. Nearly all agreed that it was practicable beyond the shadow of a doubt, but when asked to name the best incubator there was a diversity of opinions; so much so that we decided to wait a year before investing in one. Dur ing the year we made repeated inquiries and this spring we had settled upon the Axford, manufactured by Axford & Brother, Chicago III., as our choice. We still had some doubts about the matter and wrote to Axford and Brother to send us one on trial to be paid for if it proved satisfactory, and to be returned free of charge if it would not work.

They replied that "they did not care to send them out on trial. They had been thoroughly tested and their merit had been fully established in the hands of their contemps. They could find of their customers. They could find ready sale for them without sending them out on trial." The tone of their letter convinced us that they had no confideuce whatever in their own invention and were afraid to send out one on trial as they knew it was sure to be re-turned. We finally decided to buy one, feeling as we did that this was one of the very best made, and should this fail to work, the whole subject of artificial incubation would be a fraud and tailure. When the incubator came we did not feel like employing an expert to run it, but preferred to place it in the care of a hired man who had no knowledge of the business and did not even understand the nature and workings of a galvanic battery. We thought it would be best to give it no skilled attention but place it in such care as any good faithful man could give it; and if with this attention it was failure we would far lead to the state of the it was a failure, we would fearlessly pro-nounce it to be impracticable for the farmer. Mention was made in the Ag-riculturist when the machine arrived and from that day to this a stream of inquiries has poured in upon us. Many of the inquiries we have been unable to answer, and we hope all who have written us on the subject will remember that our time is fully occupied remember that our time is fully occupied and that we cannot answer so many questions, although it would be a pleasure to do so if we had the time to spare. The room in which we placed the machine was a very temporary, cheap granary, in which the temperature varied fifty degress during our changeable March weather. During hard winds the dust and rain would beat into the room, which made it exceedingly unpleasant. which made it exceedingly unpleasant. Once during the period the attendant time, and this weakened the battery so much that it refused to control the heat guage, and for nearly a whole day the erature of the ovens was six degrees all the medicine she has taken for six years.

Bitters. They did her more good than all the medicine she has taken for six years.

WM. T. McClure. tor, and when kept in order, which is very easily done, it will keep the heat at or required degree.

Our machine holds eight hundred eggs, which are placed in two separate evens of four hundred each, one oven being directly above the other. We filled the upper oven first, and at this writing we have three hundred and fifty nice chicks three days old from the four hundred eggs in the upper oven. There were three hundred eggs and the upper oven. three hundred and sixty hatched, but we lost ten. They are the liveliest, clean-est and best lot of chicks we ever saw of their age. We do not wish to say that no other incubator will do as well, but we know what this has done, and we are so well satisfied that we have purchased another of the same make and size. We have no hesitation whatever in saying that any one who purchases one of the Axford incubators and gives it good care will be abundantly satisfied with the reto their full capacity, and shall place the results obtained in the future before our readers .- Kansas Agriculturist.

The Queen as a Martinet.

The court etiquette has grown more rigid and inflexible during these months of increasing morbidness, and soon, it is feared, the Queen will be as far removed from her people as a Chinese Emperor. She carries out her wilful insistance upon etiquette in every least detail, and even when it concerns her own children and grandchildren.

When the Princess Louise returned from Canada and arrived at Windsor, she was kept waiting until she had changed her attire and until the Queen sent word that she was prepared to receive her. It is reported that the Princess attered the drawing room in the cess entered the drawing-room in the evening to await dinner, dressed in a most lovely crimson velvet gown, with crimson silk hose to match. The Queen, happening to espy the Princess feet said: "Do you know that colored stockings are not permitted in my presence?
Go to your room at once and change your stockings!" And so the poor
Princess came down to dinner in a crimson velvet dress wearing white stockings Mot one of the Royal children ever visited the Queen except by special 'and formal invitation. Her Majesty appoints the hour for her own children to come and for them to go. One can imagine the unnaturalness of such a household. The Prince Consort was stately, but he was a genial, happy, mirth-loving gentleman. He was the most affectionate husband and father, and no royal etiquette ever stood in the way of his fine quette ever stood in the way of his fine German heartiness. Since his death his children have had no parental compan-ionship, and they are as far removed from the Queen as though they had not been born of her.

It is well-known that the Prince o Wales has very great influence with his mother and is personally deeply attached to her. He was a constant companion of his father, and he quite remembers how his father managed the Queen in the old days. The Prince is said to be most charming in his relations to his mother, and is always upon his most beautiful manners in her presence. He at times does approach her with great affection and even tenderness of feeling and demonstration.

Uncle Gabe's Troubles.

The scene opens in a San Francisco odging house, where a lot of drovers are preparing for bed, among whom is Un-cle Gabe, the genius of the crowd.

Thirty years ago I was a tolerable young man and lived in Texas, and in the summer of 1842, some folks moved out thar from East Tennessee, old friends of ourn, and they had three likely gals, the oldest of which I had a kinder bank-ering arter back in the old State. Well, they had been out here five or six weeks afore I heard of it, but the Sunday after I determined I would strike out, I bought me a pair of ten dollar pants and a fancy ready-made shirt, of a Jew. It were all of thirty miles to my gal's house, and as I started late I didn't make it till late, and nothing to eat since breakfast I arrived tolerable wolfish.

They had just got into a new double log house, the end they were living in was all dobbed and chincked, but the other end only had the roof on. The old man helped me put up my mustang pony and we went up to the house Well I was kind of bashful and sot down in the chimney corner, and rite along the side of me sot a long-handled frying pan, the kind they use on the plains you know. I got to running first one finger and then another in the hole in the handle, and at last I got my mid-dle finger in and fast, and I couldn't get it out, for I pulled and sveated, but it vern't no use, it were there. Just then they asked me to set up to supper, but I said I had cat a late dinner and wern't a bit hungry, but Lord I were orful hungry, and grub a cooking made me wuss.

But while they were at supper I got my finger outen the hole. Well, I talked to my gal till about 10 o'clock, then she showed me a bed in the unfinished end of the house where I turned in for the balance of the night tolerable happy and miserably hungry. The wind blowed in through the cracks between the logs on my head pretty cold, so I took my new casimere pants and stuck in the crack casimere pants and stuck in the crack and I went to sleep. I was woke up in morning by hearing the gals getting breakfast, so I though I would get up, and reached for my, ants in the crack but they wern't there, so I thought they had dropped outen the crack and I riz up and looked thro'—and cu-s my old buttons if some young calves hadn't buttons if some young calves hadn't found them and chawed them all to

Pretty soon one of the gals come to the door and asked me to get ready and come to breakfast, but I told her I was sick and couldn't eat, at the same time I ould have eat briled dorg, just then.

They all eat their grub and the gals went to milk, and I could look through the crack and see them when they got thro' milking, and then they come back and sot the milk buckets inside the back door of my room, at the foot of the bed and went back to part the cows from the calves so thinks, I, now is my chance to get a good drink of milk, out of bed I umped and gathered a big wooden buck t by each side, and was just letting it et by each side, and was just letting it run down my throat when the pail dropped back over my head, and I heard the gals coming. I knowed I was in a bad fix, so I stood my ground—open come the door, in pranced all three of the gals for the buckets, and they did not appear to see the show until they got purty close to me, then they give a little yell and a whist, and I was by myself; then I give the bucket a twist and got it off my neck, and kicked it under the bed, and crawled back in my nest.

back in my nest. Purty soon the old man come in and I told him of all my miserable luck, and the old sinner just laid down, rolled over and laffed at me, but he lent me a pair of pants, and they was as much too big as my shirt was too little. I got my mustang pony to start home, when they asked me to call again, but I did not. I I went home and cat enough to make me gight for a great but I did not asked. sick fur a week, but I got over it, and I lit out for Kalifornia, and I don't go much on milk, young calves, etc., since that notable scrape.

 A young lady made a narrow escape at a fire in New York a few nights since. About half of her back hair was burned. Fortunately she was not in the house at the time, having put on her other hair and left the house only half an hour before the fire broke out.

I purchased five bottles of your Hop Bitters of Bishop & Co. last fall, for my daughter, and am well pleased with the years. WM. T. McClure.

The above is from a very reliable far-mer, whose daughter was in poor health for seven or eight years, and could ob-tain no relief until she used Hop Bitters. She is now in as good health as any per-son in the country. We have a large sale, and they are making remarkable cures. W. H. Bishop & Co.

- They were speaking of a young lady who sings beautifully, and one of the party asked: "Is she a mezzo soprano?" "No, I guess not. I think she is was the innocent reply of a high school-girl.

Puny, weak, and sickly children are made healthy and strong by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

— A young man married against the wishes of his parents, and in telling a friend how to break the news to them said: "Tell them first that I am dead, and gently work up the climax."

- A little boy was out with his big brother shooting. They came to a churchyard. There, in a tree, an owl was sitting. The boy with a gun shot it, to the horror of his little brother, who exclaimed: "Oh, Tommy! what have you been and done? You have been and shot a cherrybum !"

We present no pretended "dracle.-"Truth is mighty and most prevail."

- No sophistry can withsta at the power of its honest utterance.

Editor of Evening Press: -

DEAR SIR,—Feeling deeply grateful for the great benefits which I have received from the use of a very valuable article which has its origin and home in our beautiful city, and hoping that others who are afflicted as I have been may find like re-lief from its use, I beg the indulgence of a few lines in your valuable paper for the privilege of communicating to you a brief statement of facts, for the benefit of the multitude of sufferers to be met with on every side. Many of my friends well know that I have been very severely afflicted with heart disease for a number of years, and have suffered from it as only those can suffer who have that disease; it reduced my strength so low that I could scarcely walk across my room, and the least exertion rendered me so shortbreathed that I dared scarcely move, and life breathed that I dared scarcely move, and life seemed very burdensome. I was treated for my malady by the best physicians, and derived no ben-eft from their treatment or prescriptions until I was advised by my family physician to use Hunt's Remedy, as my trouble was caused by in-action of my kidneys, which affected very seri-cusly the action of my heart. I commenced take ously the action of my heart. I commenced tak-ing it (having little faith in it or any other medicine), and it has helped me wonderfully, and I am now a great deal better, and have been ever since I began its use. In fact I have taken no nedicine that has benefited me so greatly. My breathing is easy, and I have gained in strength so much that I am able to do my housework. I cheerfully recommend Hunt's Remedy to all who may be afflicted as I have been, or who are suffering from general debility and nervous prostra-Respectfully, Mas. A. O. ROCKWELL,

TRUE Temperance

Is not signing a pledge or taking a solemn oath that cannot be kept, because of the non-removal of the cause -liquor. The way to make a man temperate is to kill the desire for those dreadful artificial stimulants that carry so many bright intellects to premature graves, and desolation, strife and unhappiness into so many families.
